Implant therapy for the edentulous patient: A review of the latest workflow and treatment options

Implant therapy in the edentulous or soon-to-be edentulous patient is an expanding segment of clinical practice. Thanks to advancements in technologies and techniques, dental professionals are now able to predictably increase function, form and esthetics for this patient population.

The purpose of this course is to provide a comprehensive overview of the evolving treatment options and planning concepts that help contribute to successful full arch treatment. Specific challenges with the edentulous population as well as clinical tips and pitfalls found in specific clinical situations will be discussed.

At the completion of this course, participants will be able to understand:

- Various edentulous treatment options including implant-assisted and implant-supported restorations.
- How to identify the best treatment option based on individual patient needs and expectations.
- The importance of diagnosis, communication and treatment planning.
- The benefits of new edentulous treatment options including patient-specific friction-retained prostheses and screw-retained fixed hybrids on a minimum of 4 implants.
- How to simplify and increase the predictability of fixed and removable cases.
